Position Summary
The Department of History and International Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point (UWSP) seeks applicants for a tenure-track assistant professor position. Applicants with expertise in global/world history, European history, Latin American/Caribbean history, Middle Eastern/North African history or the history of any other region outside of the United States are all welcome. Applicants with expertise in any chronological period are welcome. Candidates who can offer courses in any of the following fields will be preferred: gender and women’s history, the history of medicine, or International Studies.

Teaching duties will consist of four courses per semester. This will usually include three sections of lower-division introductory history courses (including a world history survey) and one section of an advanced course. The position is based at the Stevens Point campus and involves courses primarily taught in person, but there is a possibility of teaching assignments at the Wausau or Marshfield campuses, and of online or hybrid courses. Average enrollment for each lower-division section is 40 and enrollment in advanced courses averages 25.

History faculty members maintain an active research agenda and further serve the program through student advising, department committees, and participation in shared governance and professional outreach programs. Strong teaching performance, continued scholarly achievements, and university service are necessary for retention, tenure, and promotion.
Required Qualifications
- Completed PhD in History.
- Specialization outside of US History

Preferred Qualifications
- Ability to teach gender and women’s studies or the history of medicine.
- Previous teaching experience
- Strong communication skills
- Strong commitment to undergraduate education
- Strong commitment to equity-minded teaching and learning
