Monday and Wednesday 6:45 p.m. – 8 p.m.

This class will examine principles and strategies used in public relations. We will attempt to understand the communication tools used in public relations programs and campaigns. Through the analysis of contemporary examples, we will try to understand the role of public relations in society and some of the ethical issues confronting public relations practitioners.

The program competencies for the Division of Communication detail that by the time they graduate, students should be able to:

1. Communicate effectively using appropriate technologies for diverse audiences;
2. Plan, evaluate and conduct basic (quantitative and qualitative) communication research;
3. Use communication theories to understand and solve communication problems;
4. Apply historical communication perspectives to contemporary issues and practices; and
5. Apply principles of ethical decision making in communication contexts.

By the end of the semester, students should be able to:

- Define public relations and explain how PR programs and campaigns are developed;
- Understand how legal and ethical issues shape the public relations field;
- Compare how public relations functions in a variety of for-profit and nonprofit settings; and
- Comprehend how objectives, strategies and tactics are developed by public relations professionals.
