COURSE DESCRIPTION

The major purpose of the course is to provide students with an understanding of the major historical and contemporary theories of human development, learning and motivation and their educational implications.

Course Objectives

If you bring sufficient ability and apply reasonable effort to this course, you will improve your demonstrable knowledge, skills, and dispositions in how you:

1. Explain the issues, methods, ideas, and models used by social scientists to investigate human learning, development, and behavior, and then apply this understanding in your teaching and professional development.
2. Examine the possible influences on students (e.g., home lives, peer groups, media, other social, cultural, or political institutions), and adapt your teaching

4. Use the InTASC Model Core Teaching Standards in your planning, teaching, and self-evaluation.

This course touches on all InTASC Model Core Teaching Standards, and focuses on:

1. Learner Development (a, b, c, d, e, h, i, j, k)
2. Learning Differences (a, c, d, f, g, h, j, k, l, m, n)
3. Planning for Instruction (a, c, d, h, i, j, k, m, n, o, p, q)
4. Professional Learning and Ethical Practice (a, b, c, d, e, f, g, i, j, m, n, o)

Teaching Philosophy Essay (TPE)

An essay that communicates your philosophy and understanding of how students learn and its implications for instruction will determine an important portion of your grade in this course. In many everyday interactions and activities (from sharing a story with friends to parenting a child), our philosophy of human learning is made manifest. Often, this philosophy is tacit and unarticulated; it simply exists – unexamined – in our subconscious. The purpose of this assignment is to make your philosophy of human learning (and its implications for teaching) explicit; to provide you with an opportunity to examine (consciously and critically) how people learn and, accordingly, how they should be taught.

As a part of this assignment, you will be placed in a Philosophy Peer Exchange Group in which you are to exchange your draft philosophy assignment with your partner. These groups will be announced during later in the class. You will use Track Changes in MS Word to provide comments, edits, and suggestions in a constructive professional manner to identify areas that need further development or clarification, as well as identify excellent sections in the draft.

A more detailed description of this essay and its requirements will be provided later in the class and posted on the D2L.

Respond to the Syllabus

By due date, I would like you to read the class syllabus carefully and to then write down your understanding of various points. This is so I can be sure you understand what you are getting yourself into. You automatically receive full points if you complete it on time. By completing this assignment, you are saying that you've read the syllabus. You're also saying that if you have any questions about the syllabus, you have asked me, or you will ask me.

In this assignment, you will also introduce yourself to me. I will read your introduction and reply to you individually. Detailed info and guidelines for the as-

Case Study Presentations

A group of three people will present an analysis of a real life case in the classroom. Cases and dates will be given by the instructor. Teams will form through a signup sheet and each team will choose a case topic, personally find of most interest. Groups are expected to present a 15-20 min. presentation and lead discussion related to the case during class time.

The case method or case-based learning is one of the most motivating and effective ways to structure instruction and engage students in meaningful learning. In thinking though and discussing authentic cases of teaching and learning, you will come to further understand of how the theoretical concepts discussed might be applied to actual scenarios or dilemmas that teachers routinely confront.

Before preparing your case presentation you will need to read related chapters of your text which will assist you in formulating your position on the case. RUBRIC and detailed info for this assignment will be introduced later in the class.

Movie Analysis Paper

You will be asked watch one of the movies about education from the list of movies available on the D2L. Your paper will be an analysis of the educational philosophy or philosophies evident in these movies. You will be expected to draw on the various theories discussed in the course both to identify the dominant educational philosophy at work in the movie and to assess its application and effectiveness.

More information about this assignment will be available later in the course. The purpose of the paper is to prompt you to critically apply the course concepts using a specific example of education. RUBRIC and detailed info for the assignment will be introduced later in the class.

Exams

There will be two (2) in-class exams on the designated dates in this course. Exams may include multiple choice, true/false, short answer/listing, or essay. Specific details regarding each exam will be discussed

Attendance

Attendance in the class is mandatory. Each class will involve discussion of the readings, mini-lectures, and in-class projects and activities. It is in your best interest to attend every class, and to participate actively. When you are absent from class, the class as a whole and you as an individual miss an opportunity to learn. However, I also understand that emergencies and illnesses occur and those events may cause you to miss class. You are allowed only 2 absences for illness or personal emergency from this course.

At the end of the course, if you miss 2 or less classes, you will receive full 10 pts for attendance; and after the second class missed you will have deduction of 1 point for each class missed. More than 4 absences are a serious cause for concern; they will necessitate a conference with me and may result in a failing grade for the course.

Special Needs

I'm dedicated to accommodating the needs of my students. I don't believe that equal treatment is the same as fair treatment. A course requirement like a deadline may be unfair to you, based on a life event or a disability. If I agree that the requirement is unfair, then I'm happy to make an accommodation. Here are some exceptional needs I have accommodated in the past: learning disability, physical disability, chronic illness, death in the family, car accident, sick child.

As a teacher, I align my policies and choices with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), a federal law that requires educational institutions to provide reasonable accommodations for students with disabilities. Here is more information about UWSP's relevant policies . If you have a disability and want an accommodation, please register with the Disability Services and Assistive Technology Office and then contact me. If you're unfamiliar or uneasy with this process, please contact me anyways and we'll work through it together.

When contacting me about a life event or other exceptional

Academic Integrity

I expect you to come to class promptly and regularly, prepared to actively and fully participate in the activities. I expect you to treat me, your colleagues, and anyone else with respect and tolerance. I expect you to take responsibility for managing your life so that you complete all assignments on time. If you are unable to meet these expectations (e.g., attendance, assignments), I expect you to communicate with me and anyone else affected (e.g., your colleagues) as soon as possible, and to suggest a clear, fair plan to address the problem.

I expect you to complete your assignments with integrity. For most assignments, you will be free to use resources and people inside and outside of this course. Some assignments may even require this. However, I expect you to give proper credit for anything that isn't your own original work. I urge you to make intellectual integrity a central part of your professional identity. Professionals in a variety of fields routinely use other people's work (e.g., lesson plans in education). But accidentally or deliberately leaving off credit is professionally and morally wrong. I use anti-plagiarism tools. I don't expect my students to plagiarize others' work; rather, you can be confident that no one is plagiarizing your work (e.g., in a future class). If you are unclear on how to give proper credit, please ask me before turning in the assignment.

As a teacher, I align my policy on academic misconduct (e.g., cheating) with Chapter 14 of the UWSP Bill of Rights and Responsibilities . This is my general policy: I will allow you to redo the relevant assignment for no more than 50% possible, and you won't be eligible to earn higher than a B+ in this course (UWSP 14.04 (1) (d, e)). I will honor your right to a conference with me, to a written report from me, and to contest my decision (UWSP 14.06 (1, 3)).

Late Assignments

I expect you to complete all assignments on time. An assignment completed on time can receive 100% of the points possible. An assignment completed no more than 48 hours late can receive no more than 80%
