Syllabus

Required Texts: • Kirszner & Mandell. Practical Argument. 3rd ed.
• Hacker, Diana. Rules for Writers.

This course is designed to prepare you to communicate effectively in an academic setting and to arm you with helpful strategies for successful writing outside of the university. Our focus will be on the methods of inquiry and argumentation most commonly practiced within academic communities. Because academic discourse relies so heavily on a thorough documentation of claims, a large component of the work you do this semester will involve library research. You will be working together with your classmates in a workshop environment, which means you will be writing almost every day and will be reading and commenting on your classmates' work.

Papers. You will complete 3 research papers (3-5 pages each), and 3 shorter papers (2-3 pages). See Guidelines for Papers (below) for more specific instructions on paper expectations. Plagiarism will not be tolerated; see the University's "Community Rights and Responsibilities" for more information on academic expectations.

Participation: (120 points)

Daily Homework assignments. (60 points total, 4 points per week) You will need to post responses to homework assignments once or twice a week. Most homework assignments will be turned in through Canvas, but some might be completed in class.

Attendance. (60 points total, 4 points per week). Regular attendance is required and is important for completing the course successfully. If you are unable to come to class, please let me know ahead of time if possible. You are responsible for making up any work missed due to an absence. There is no Zoom option for attendance.

Your final grade will be calculated as follows:

Research papers (3)	300
Short papers (3)	180
Participation	120
	600 points

Guidelines For Papers

All papers must adhere to the following guidelines*:

1. They must be typed and proofread with any errors neatly corrected.
2. Double-space and print on one side of the page only
3. Use 1" margins all around, use a 10- or 12-point regular (not bold or italicized) font, and number each page.
4. There is no need for a separate title page; however, you must use a creative title at the beginning of your paper.
5. Put your name and the date in the upper right-hand corner of the first page.

Late Papers: All papers must be turned in at the beginning of class on the day assigned; however, a late paper may be accepted if you work out a reasonable plan of completion with me. There is no guarantee that late papers will be returned to you before the end of the semester.

* Failure to follow these guidelines may affect your grade.
