Course Content: This course explores the structure and dynamics of the criminal justice system as a form of social control in the United States. We touch on four main areas: the criminal justice system itself as a form of social control, the law and public policy as a form of social control, law enforcement as social control, and the role of corrections in social control. Some of the themes we touch upon include due process, rights and liberties, and public order. We finish the semester with a look at the role of the criminal justice system in the war on terror.

Please read the remainder of this syllabus carefully; it can be viewed as a contract of sorts (although I retain the right to make changes if necessary – they will be kept to a minimum and will be discussed in class), laying out what you can expect of me as well as what I will expect of you. I look forward to working with you this semester. Welcome.

Required Textbook:

Joycelyn M. Pollock, Crime and Justice in America, 3rd edition.

Student Learning Outcomes: By the end of the semester each student should be able to...

- Describe and discuss the system of crime and punishment in the United States;
- Evaluate the criminal justice system as a form of social control;
- Explain and analyze concepts such as due process, rights and liberties;
- Explain the basic functions of the court system in the United States;
- Describe and discuss the U.S. system of corrections;
- Analyze the American system of crime and punishment in a global context.

Attendance: I believe, in general, that attendance policies should not be necessary at the university-level. Unfortunately, experience has shown that many students will only attend class regularly if it directly affects their grade. I will take attendance. If you cannot make class on any particular day, the lecture will be recorded and uploaded into Canvas. You are to watch the recording and send me a brief paragraph – by email – describing the lecture. That will count as your attendance on that particular day. During the course, your discussion will be worth 50 points. Obviously, you cannot discuss if you do not attend. I will take attendance every day.

Academic Honesty

Please do not cheat – cheating does nothing but rob you of the chance for an education. As a college student, you are part of an academic community and are expected to behave in a manner that is respectful of that community, in part by being academically honest. Examples of academic misconduct include, but are not limited to “cheating on an examination,” “submitting a paper or assignment as one’s own work when a part or all of the paper or assignment is the work of another,” and “submitting a paper or assignment that contains ideas or research of others without appropriately identifying the sources of those ideas.”

Course Requirements:

1. Attendance is required. See the section above on attendance for a discussion of my policy.
2. Discussion is important. Don’t be afraid to speak up, ask questions, or challenge the information I give you. Education is not strictly a spectator sport -- you will find the class more interesting and informative if you participate.
3. Be nice, be patient, be tolerant.
4. Exams and stuff like that –

- There will be three exams given in this class; two “midterm exams” and the final exam. Each midterm exam will be worth 120 points and the final will be worth 160 points.
- Regular class attendance and participation will be worth 50 points.
- Each student will be expected to write a short “research” paper addressing some aspect of the criminal justice system in the United States. The paper will be 3-4 pages in length and will be worth 50 points. The assignment will be discussed in more detail (and you will be given a handout in Canvas) during the first two weeks of the course.
- To review, the distribution of points will be as follows:

Attendance and participation	- 50 points
Exams	- 400 points
Research Paper	- 50 points
Total	- 500 points

There will be no make-up exams or assignments except in the case of a bona fide (and verified) emergency! All make-up exams will consist of essay questions only.

Grades will be assigned as follows:

A = 93-100%

- = 90-92 %

B+=87-89%

B = 83-86%

B-= 80-83%

C+ = 77-79%

C = 73-76%

C-= 70-72%

D+= 67-69%

D = 60-66%

F = 59% or below
