A Note from the Director

Welcome to the musical that critics call “delightful... ravishing... witty... richly melodic... soaring... a gem”! Well, I’m not going to argue with them. I was captivated with the beauty, romance and wit of She Loves Me when I performed in a summer stock production during my own college student years, and I hope you’ll be captivated as well by this musical valentine.

Based on the play Parfumerie by the Hungarian writer Miklos Laszlo, She Loves Me shares its main story and characters with three film adaptations: The Shop Around the Corner (1940) with Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart, In the Good Old Summertime (1949) with Judy Garland and Van Johnson, and You’ve Got Mail (1998) with Meg Ryan and Tom Hanks. It seems the idea of two feuding co-workers (or store owners) who are falling in love with each other through their letters (or e-mails) is just too romantic to resist!

Heartfelt thanks to a brilliant and creative cast (listen to those voices!), talented and hard-working designers (feast your eyes on Libby Stadstad’s lovely set, Jaime Nunn’s evocative lighting, Andy Broomell’s astonishing variety of props and Susan Sherwin’s elegant costumes!), and a first-rate production staff (Sarah Roser, Jen Wilson and Nick Reising are stage-managing titans!).

And of course very special thanks to Tim Howard, whose music direction is as always knowledgeable, sensitive and consummately professional. How wonderfully romantic to have a violin and cello in the orchestra!

A note about names: most (Arpad, Kodaly) are pronounced in the Hungarian way, while a few (Georg) are Americanized. Believe me, we know; the creators wrote it that way.

A final word to you, dear friends and audience members: enjoy!
