Facility Services is proud to be displaying the work of student artists inside the Maintenance and Materiel building. These very talented students are from Susan Morrison's freshman class. Thanks to some great framing work by Facility Services carpenter, Todd Wipperfurth and the students hard work, their efforts are helping to supply smiles to all occupants and visitors in the building. The artists, whose work is featured on display near the main entryway to M&M, include Patricia Ochs, Annie-Laurie Zanter, Samuel O'Shasky, Breanna Downey and Sierra Lech. Thank you for sharing your talent for all to enjoy!

"The purpose of art is washing the dust of daily life off our souls."
- Pablo Picasso

No one correctly identified the location of the image above which was taken above the entry doors on the east side of the Student Services Building. Perhaps you will win a treat from T.E.A.M. next time?

The largest Groundhog's Day celebration takes place in Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania where the famous groundhog Punxsutawney Phil has predicted the weather each year since 1886. Large crowds of well over 10,000 people gather there to see Phil come out of his burrow at around 7:30am. Boy, that's one old groundhog!

The origins of Groundhog Day can be traced to German settlers in Pennsylvania. These settlers celebrated February 2nd as Candlemas Day. On this day if the sun came out then there would be six more weeks of wintry weather. At some point people began to look to the groundhog to make this prediction.
