Text: Arts Management: Uniting Arts and Audiences in the 21st Century

Ellen Rosewall, Oxford University Press, 2014

Required; available for rental at the University Store or for purchase on Amazon.com.

(The same text is required for ARTM 395. It will be an excellent reference as you go through the Arts Management major and, indeed, your arts management career.)

Course Description

Welcome to Arts Management! ARTM 195 is the beginning of a great adventure, and I look forward to experiencing it with you - to answering your questions, hearing your concerns, sharing your triumphs. We will set up at least one formal appointment during this semester, and my office hours are noted above, but you are always welcome when the door to CAC 205 is open. Please come in and talk to me.

Please note that Arts Management is an interdisciplinary field. If you choose to pursue an Arts Management major, you'll take courses in Business and Communication, as well as in the arts disciplines. This course is therefore a "Tasting Menu." It is designed to familiarize you with various elements of an arts organization (management, budgeting, accounting, marketing, production, fundraising, etc.), the details of which you will learn in other courses as you progress through the major. Our goal is for you to understand the pieces of an arts organization and how they fit together so that you will understand the relevance of each piece as you study it later, in much more depth.

Specifically, this course will introduce you to the field of Arts Management and the issues involved in bringing arts and audiences together. We will examine the fundamental structures and operating systems of organizations like orchestras and musical ensembles, opera companies, museums and art centers, galleries, theatre and dance companies, arts facilities, presenters and promoters.

We'll spend a lot of time talking about the structure and challenges of not-for-profit organizations. What about for-profit companies, you ask? Certainly, they're crucial to the arts, as well. But, if you continue studying Arts Management, you'll find that your Business courses focus on for-profits. Because non-profits remain a typical means of arts-delivery in the United States, and because they are not much studied elsewhere on campus, we concentrate on them here.

We'll look at how organizations engage artists and audiences, how they interact with other arts groups, with businesses, and with community institutions. We'll examine how they are governed, internally (formal leadership) and externally (public policy and market forces). You will learn about management functions and how they support an organization's mission, artists and other stakeholders.

We'll also discuss current issues, historical context, economic conditions, organizational cultures, financial systems, cultural policy and government's role in the arts.

There are two posters outside my office. The one on the door says
I BELIEVE IN ALL THE ARTS FOR ALL THE PEOPLE.

The framed one says
THE ARTS MUST SURVIVE AS A BUSINESS TO THRIVE AS ART.

Our work this semester will be part of a continuing conversation* about a world in which the aspiration of the first statement is tempered by the reality of the second. I look forward to hearing your thoughts.

 If you choose to continue in Arts Management, this conversation will last your entire career.*

Essential Questions

- What is art?
- What is arts management?
- What are the responsibilities of arts organizations to artists?
- Does government have a role in the arts?
- What is the difference between curatorship and censorship?
- What roles do arts organizations play in their communities?
- What are the responsibilities of artists and arts organizations to their audiences? ...to their communities? ...to society?

Learning Outcomes for Arts Management 195

By the end of this course, students will be able to:

- Discuss current issues in arts management and their relevance to community and society;
- Recognize the function and internal structure of various types of arts organizations;
- Describe how business skills and arts expertise are applied in arts management;
- Demonstrate the development and operation of an arts organization from mission determination through program implementation and evaluation; and
- Recognize whether arts management is an appropriate career choice for them.

Learning Outcomes for the Arts Management Major and Division of Communication

By the time they complete all major requirements, students will have gained the following competencies (*outcomes supported by this course):

- Communicate effectively using appropriate technologies for diverse audiences;*
- *Articulate the role of the arts in community development and civic engagement;
- *Differentiate for-profit and not-for-profit activities in the arts ecology;
- Plan, evaluate and conduct basic research;*
- Use appropriate theories to understand and solve problems;
- Apply historical perspectives to contemporary issues and practices;*
- Apply principles of ethical decision making in communication contexts;*
- *Apply business and communication skills in support of creative endeavor;
- *Network effectively with artists and arts management professionals.

Course Requirements

The final grade will be based upon graded assignments (including a semester project), class participation, final examination, and attendance.

ATTENDANCE IS MANDATORY.

You are entitled to two absences. Illness and excused absences will count against this allowance. All other absences will reduce your final grade.

- If you miss class, you should arrange to get the day's information from a classmate.

1. Class Participation: Active participation in classroom activities is a course requirement and counts for 15% of the final course grade. I may include occasional quizzes as part of class.

- Quality participation requires professional behavior: obvious preparation for class, asking pertinent questions, offering relevant comments, taking notes, engaging with guest speakers, participating in classroom discussions, and other activities.

- THIS CLASSROOM IS AN ELECTRONICS-FREE ZONE. Much of our work this semester will be done through discussion, so you need to participate fully and listen, not only to me but to your classmates, with respect and full attention. ALL PERSONAL ELECTRONICS

MUST BE TURNED OFF BY THE TIME CLASS STARTS.

2. Guidelines for Class Discussions: As individuals with diverse experiences and backgrounds, we will not always agree on issues, and our interpretation of the subject matter being discussed will sometimes differ. I expect you to respect the opinions of others while asserting your own.

3. Submission of Assignments: Assignments will be submitted by the beginning of each class period: choose (1) via the appropriate Dropbox folder on D2L, or (2) by hard copy.

4. Late Assignments: Assignments are due as noted below. The assignment is considered LATE any time after the deadline. NO EXCEPTIONS! Late assignments will automatically lose at least one point (from a maximum of 10). Late assignments must be submitted to me via email, and hard copy may be handed in at my office, CAC 205.

5. Plagiarism and Academic Integrity: From the UWSP 14.01 STATEMENT OF PRINCIPLES – Students are responsible for the honest completion and representation of their work, for the appropriate citation of sources, and for respect of others’ academic endeavors. Students who violate these standards must be confronted and must accept the consequences of their actions.

For more info: <http://www.uwsp.edu/dos/Pages/Academic-Misconduct.aspx>

Note: Submissions via D2L will be automatically screened for plagiarism.

6. Students with Special Needs/Disabilities: Any student who anticipates needing an accommodation based on the impact of a disability (including mental health, chronic or temporary medical conditions) should contact me privately to discuss specific needs.

Students are strongly encouraged to contact the Disability and Assistive Technology Center (DATC) at 715-346-3365 or at datctr@uwsp.edu to seek further assistance.

Students currently registered with DATC may provide their Notice of Accommodation Letters (yellow forms) to me in my office, after class, or via e-mail.

Course Assignments

- 1. Readings: Please complete assigned readings prior to each class meeting and come prepared to participate in active discussions. Regular readings are posted on D2L and listed on the syllabus. Additional readings for upcoming class meetings may be added from time to time; you will be notified via e-mail.
- 2. Current Arts News: You will read daily and/or weekly articles, journals, and blogs related to arts/arts management. You should submit one article/post report each week; you may skip up to three reports without penalty. Report format: (a) headline, source, link to article/post; (b) 50-word summary of article; (c) 150-word discussion identifying the issue and its importance to Arts Management. See examples posted on D2L. Reports will be graded on content, quality of writing, spelling, punctuation, and grammar. Most classes will begin with a discussion of the week's news. You should expect to present two news items orally in class and lead the resulting discussion
- 3. Event Attendance and Report: You will choose three events, each in a different art form, from among those offered by the Department of Theatre and Dance, the Department of Music, Centertainment, the Performing Arts Series, Carlsten and Scarabocchio Galleries, and other organizations. You must attend the events and show evidence of attendance (ticket, program, a scanned image or selfie, etc.). By the end of the course, you must prepare a report comparing and contrasting the three events, noting personal evaluation, the nature of the venues, audience response, and connecting them to issues of arts management and career goals. The report will be graded on content, quality of writing, spelling, punctuation, and grammar.
- 4. Written Assignments: There will be 11 written assignments, roughly one each week for the first three-quarters of the semester. Assignments will relate to the assigned readings and topics discussed in previous classes. You may drop the two lowest grades, but all 11 will combine into a semester-long "Build Your Own Arts Organization" project (see below). Written assignments will be graded on content, quality of writing, spelling, punctuation, and grammar.
- 5. SWOT & Plan (Assignment #12): The Written Assignments noted above will combine into a semester-long "Build Your Own Arts Organization" project. In the final weeks of the semester, you will review your previous assignments, taking a comprehensive look at your ideal arts organization, putting together a strategic plan for its development.
- 6. Final Project:
You will present an oral summary of your plan to the class and submit the project in written form (including PowerPoint, Prezi, etc.). The project will be graded on content, oral presentation, insightful revision of earlier assignments consistent with the purpose of a grant proposal, quality of writing, spelling, punctuation, and grammar.
- 7. Final Exam: Wednesday, May 17, 2017, 8:00-10:00am: The exam will consist of a small number of short answer questions and brief essays.
